AIMS OF THE COURSE

The MA Writing the City is one of three Creative Writing Masters programmes (Writing the City, English Language and Creative Writing, and TESOL and Creative Writing) and part of a suite of Masters programmes under the title of Cultural, Critical and Literary Studies that is based within the School of Humanities. This suite also includes the MAs in Critical and Cultural Studies, in Visual Culture, and in Museums, Galleries and Contemporary Culture. Like other postgraduate creative writing courses, this MA is aimed at students who already have some writing experience and a facility with language, but who are willing to develop their creative writing to a more advanced and professional level. The MA Writing the City provides a course that is wide-ranging in terms of genre, but also has a distinctive focus on a specific subject matter: the city of London. Students on the course are encouraged to respond to the urban environment through their writing. All the MA modules will invite students to discover their own way to map the city, both in their creative writing as well as in their research projects. Options are offered across the programmes, enabling students to construct a programme of study in which they can follow particular themes in the areas that most interest them, such as fiction writing, playwriting, and digital writing.

Specifically the MA Writing the City aims to:

- develop and scrutinise the ideas of reading and writing the city
- enable students to write in a variety of genres of their choice and to aim for a professional standard in their writing
- foster the use of focussed research as the basis for imaginative and original creative work
- enhance advanced skills of presentation specific to creative writing
- employ knowledge of urban writing, assimilated from a variety of existing texts, of various literary forms and strategies, in developing new creative work
- experiment within and beyond the conventions of established literary genres
- explore writing opportunities offered by a variety of media
- relate their own creativity to a relevant tradition of urban writing
- create a substantial and innovative body of work relating to and growing beyond that tradition
- allow students to develop advanced skills in argument, synthesis and critical expression
- provide a route to a professional writing career

- encourage students to document their own creative processes with a degree of sophistication appropriate to MA level work
- to work as writers with other writers in an atmosphere of commitment and artistic ambition.

EMPLOYMENT AND FURTHER STUDY OPPORTUNITIES

Today's organisations need graduates with both good degrees and skills relevant to the workplace, i.e. employability skills. The University of Westminster is committed to developing employable graduates by ensuring that:

- Career development skills are embedded in all courses
- Opportunities for part-time work, placements and work-related learning activities are widely available to students
- Staff continue to widen and strengthen the University's links with employers in all sectors, involving them in curriculum design and encouraging their participation in other aspects of the University's career education and guidance provision
- Staff are provided with up-to-date data on labour market trends and employers' requirements that will inform the service delivered to students.

The MA Writing the City is intended to provide students with sophisticated writing skills and a widely applicable skill base. Throughout the programme, students will be encouraged to reflect on their professional development and take proactive steps in networking with other writers and identify useful opportunities for their career development. A wide range of extra-curricular activities – including writers' events and talks, contribution to The London Postcard student blog and the student magazine The Wells Street Journal – will support this process throughout the academic year. Depending on the student's inclinations, this degree will enable students to embrace a range of careers in the writing, creative and cultural industries. In particular, the critical and practical skills the graduates will have acquired by the end of their degrees will make students desirable candidates in the following career areas: freelance writing; journalism; theatre and performance-based writing; media; education; arts management; copy-editing; publishing; research; and academia. Additionally, the degree offers transferable skills, which will enable students pursuing careers outside the writing business to enhance their professional development through the application of creative thinking and writing in areas as diverse as business, marketing and human resources.

LEARNING OUTCOMES

Learning outcomes are statements on what successful students have achieved as the result of learning. They are threshold statements of achievement and are linked to the knowledge, understanding and skills that a student will have gained on successfully completing a course.

Learning, Teaching and Assessment Methods

Learning

Published: May 2019

The workshop-based structure of the programme will allow students to learn through interactive practice. Further to this each student will be assigned an academic tutor from among the academic staff with whom they will have at least one timetabled session in the first semester.

Teaching

Modules are taught by one two-hour or three-hour seminar and workshops per week, depending on the subject. Sessions are focussed on student-centred learning, with use of non-assessed writing exercises and in-class projects to encourage student participation. Teaching will also involve the use of London institutions as a resource, including the directed use of various archives, theatres and galleries.

Assessment

Assessment methods deployed on the course include coursework in the form of portfolios allowing students to experiment in a variety of genres, reflective logs, workshop leadership, as well as the final 10,000-12,000 word writing project. There are no formal examinations.

COURSE STRUCTURE

This section shows the modules available as part of the course and their credit value. Full-time Postgraduate students study 180 credits or 4 modules per year, following the diagram below:

How will you be supported in your studies?

Course Management

The Course is hosted in the School of Humanities on the Regent site. The Course is directly managed by a Course Leader. Each module on the course also has a designated Module Leader responsible for the administration and monitoring of its design and delivery.

The course teaching team consists of staff from Creative Writing team in the School of Humanities and Visiting Lecturers. Key members of the course team meet regularly each year to identify and address ways of improving the design and delivery of the course. Staff undergo annual appraisal and observation of their teaching by colleagues leading to staff development through course attendance and/or research and scholarly activity. Staff teaching on the course also attend events organised by the School Academic Standards and the School Teaching and Learning Groups around current teaching, learning and assessment issues. The programme also recruits professional writers to facilitate specific parts of the course.

The MA course intersects with, and draws upon, the institutional resources provided by the wider set of events and cultural initiatives co-ordinated by staff within the School as well as both the writers' events series hosted by the School of Humanities, by the IMCC, and by the various events and collaborative ventures organised under the umbrella of the Westminster-Smithsonian Colloquium.

Academic Support

Upon arrival, an induction programme will introduce you to the staff responsible for the course, the campus on which you will be studying, the Library and IT facilities, additional support available and to your Campus Registry. You will be provided with the Course Handbook, which provides detailed information about the course. Each course has a course leader or Director of Studies. All students enrolled on a full-time course and part time students registered for more than 60 credits a year have a personal tutor, who provides advice and guidance on academic matters. The University uses a Virtual Learning Environment called Blackboard where students access their course materials, and can communicate and collaborate with staff and other students. Further information on Blackboard can be found at westminster.ac.uk/blackboard.

Learning Support

The Academic Learning Development Centre supports students in developing the skills required for higher education. As well as online resources in Blackboard, students have the opportunity to attend Study Skills workshops and one to one appointments. Further information on the Academic Learning Development Centre can be found at westminster.ac.uk/academic-learning-development.

Learning support includes four libraries, each holding a collection of resources related to the subjects taught at that site. Students<sup>1</sup> can search the entire library collection online through the Library Search service to find and reserve printed books, and access electronic resources (databases, e-journals, e-books). Students can choose to study in the libraries, which have areas for silent and group study, desktop computers, laptops for loan, photocopying and printing services. They can also choose from several computer rooms at each campus where desktop computers are available with the general and specialist software that supports the courses taught at their College. Students can also securely connect their own laptops and mobile devices to the University wireless network.

Support Services

The University of Westminster Student and Academic Services department provide advice and guidance on accommodation, financial and legal matters, personal counselling, health and disability issues, careers, specialist advice for international students and the chaplaincy providing multi-faith guidance. Further information on the advice available to students can be found at westminster.ac.uk/student-advice. The University of Westminster Students' Union also provides a range of facilities to support students during their time at the University. Further information on UWSU can be found at westminster.ac.uk/students-union.

How do we ensure the quality of our courses and continuous improvement?

The course was initially approved by a University Validation Panel in 2010. The panel included internal peers from the University, academic(s) from another university and a representative from industry. This helps to ensure the comparability of the course to those offered in other universities and the relevance to employers.

The course is also monitored each year by the College to ensure it is running effectively and that issues which might affect the student experience have been appropriately addressed. Staff will consider evidence about the course, including evidence of student achievement, reports from external examiners in order to evaluate the effectiveness of the course.

A Course revalidation takes place periodically to ensure that the curriculum is up-to-date and that the skills gained on the course continue to be relevant to employers. Students meet with Revalidation panels to provide feedback on their experiences. Student feedback from previous years is also part of the evidence used to assess how the course has been running.

How do we act on student feedback?

Student feedback is important to the University and student views are taken seriously. Student feedback is gathered in a variety of ways.

- Through student engagement activities at Course/Module level, students have the opportunity to express their voice in the running of their course. Student representatives are elected to expressly represent the views of their peers. The University and the Students' Union work together to provide a full induction to the role of the student representatives.

Published: May 2019

- There are also School Staff Student Exchange meetings that enable wider discussions across the School. Student representatives are also represented on key College and University committees.
- All students are invited to complete a questionnaire before the end of each module. The feedback from this will inform the module leader on the effectiveness of the module and highlight areas that could be enhanced.
- The University also has an annual Postgraduate Taught Experience Survey or PTES which helps us compare how we are doing with other institutions, to make changes that will improve what we do in future and to keep doing the things that you value.
